How the Exhibit at St. Louis Will Be Distinctive From That at Any Other Centennial.

BY CLAUDE H. WETMORE. Education finds more recognition in in any provious centennial celebration. It is the keynote of the great enterprise, permeating every display. More cal education of those who desire to over, the idea in its abstract has a home of its own, in that for the first time in culture and horticulture. Here will be shown in a building constructed exclusively for this purpose.

At Chicago and at Paris this exhibit eise. At St. Louis It is seen atone, housed in a palace which many consider the most perfect architecturally of any on the grounds. Besides, in the glassification of exhibits education loads all others, taking rank over fine arts, manufacture and all the industries. In remarking these facts visitors have added that it was strange such prominence had not been given to education before, and they are loud in their praise of those who have carried the idea so prominently to the front. In St. Louis the revealment of process will be carried out in the Palace of Education as well as in the other palaces. Fermerly it was deemed sufficient to arrange in booths samples of text books and of apparatus of the laboratory and observatory. Appliances used in the om were displayed conventionally, and visitors could pass through sisle after aisle and view only the echnicalities of the world of instruction. As a result the pedagogue only was interested. In St. Louis, however, there is to be actual demonstration of the use made of all such appliances, and the multitude will find itself entertained. Thus the model training school will be a creature of life-boys to be seen using the tools of the various trades. Pupils of a school for the blind will demonstrate the methods in vogue where the sense of touch is made to supply that of sight, and those who are deaf and layman, and likewise there will be demonstration of the methods em-ployed in using the modern telescope and taking photographs of the sun, moon and stars.

Supplementing these active exhibits will be others quite as interesting that have been secured from all over the world by means of the camera. Enter one booth and turn the swinging deers of a movable cabinet. You will see picture after picture illustrating school life, the children entering a class room, the pupils at recitation, in a fire drill, during the recess hour-in fact, through all the stages from the hour when they assemble for their studies until time comes for dismissal. As illustrations of public school life in large cities, New York, St. Louis, Cleveland and other municipalities have planned to make extensive displays, while cities of the old world will bring their systems into comparison. Higher education is exemplified as never before at a world's fair. All the

from technical institutions. Both interesting and novel will be the exhibits made by the Agricultural department of the Federal government in the Education building, for which congress made a special appropriation of $100,000. These will be in the nahe Louisiana Purchase Exposition than ture of experiment stations such as have been established at various places throughout the country for the practistudy the scientific questions of agrihistory the appliances of school life are demonstrated the best system of fertilizing the soil, of sowing the seeds, of caring for the crops, of harvesting them, and then for handling the same was made a department of something in barns and storehouses. Visitors to the Exposition will be given the opportunity for instruction in the diseases which infest the realm of Flora and the medicines or surgery that must be employed to combat the dangerous inroads. Located on the Grand basin and com manding a view of the Cascades, the Terrace of States and the Hall of Festivals, the Palace of Education, itself portion of the main picture, can be reached by either the bread boulevards or by transit over the crystal waters of the Lagoon. Its visitors may reach its doors in soller chairs, on foot or in gondola or electric launch.

In this building, as in the others, es pecial arrangements have been made for the comfort of the sightseers. Multitudineus windows permit of free currents of air constantly circulating, and withdrawal rooms are at every hand where one can sit down after becoming fatigued from too much exploration.

Agricultural Plans Completed. Mr. James L. Farmer of Tennessec, chief special agent of the United States Government board, World's Fair, has practically completed the plans for the exhibit of the colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts and experiment stations, of which he has charge. He has secured space in the Educational building for the greater part of the exhibit. which is large and comprehensive and which will be of especial interest to
